Ralph Yehle had charge of the music for the performances. R. E. Holt and Cleo Yehle had charge of the lighting. Miss Louise Kroetch assisted Miss Mahr in dressing the models. Miss Rose Flannigan and Mrs. Mabel Gillette "made up" the models.

TWO HELD IN PASTOR'S CASE

ALLEGED "MISS X" FOUND, NEWSPAPER SAYS.

CONFESSIONS SIGNED

Several Named In Conspiracy Case Concerning Aimee Semple McPherson, Noted Woman Evangelist.

Los Angeles, Sept. 24.—The Los Angeles Examiner, in a story from San Francisco, says today that the mysterious "Miss X" and John Doe Martin have been arrested in San Francisco in connection with the conspiracy charges lodged against Aimee Sempel McPherson, famous Los Angeles woman evangelist, and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, long sought in connection with the attempt of Mrs. McPherson to produce a "Miss X" as the companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator.

John Doe Martin has been identified as Harry Melosh, 35-year-old Los Angeles clothing salesman, and Miss X as Miss Babe Daniels, 20-year-old Chicago girl.

The pair, according to the story, have signed confessions naming Mrs. McPherson, her mother, a Los Angeles attorney, and a well-known Los Angeles detective as the central figures in the scheme to clear Mrs. McPherson's name.

Melosh, the story said, readily confessed to his part in the alleged affair, saying that if Mrs. McPherson "hadn't been so stingy, she might still be in the clear." He declared that Mrs. McPherson and the lawyer paid him at various times a total of $450 and promised him that he wouldn't want for money as long as he lived if the deal went through.

CARDS CLINCH THE PENNANT

ST. LOUIS WINS WHILE CINCINNATI IS LOSING.

WORLD SERIES NEXT

Hornsby Men Hammer Giant Pitchers for Five Runs in Second Inning. Game Ending 6-4.

New York, Sept. 24.—The St. Louis Cardinals, defeating New York today, 6 to 4, while Cincinnati lost the first game of a double-header to Philadelphia, clinched the championship of the National League and will play the New York Yankees in the World Series, providing there is no upset in the remaining games of the American League.

Things looked dark for the Cardinals in the first inning, when the Giants drove Rhem from the box and scored three runs. Hornsby's men ,however, came back with five runs in their half of the second, driving McQuillen off the mound.

Rhem was replaced by Sherdel, who held the Giants safely in check during the rest of the game, but Virgil Barnes who took McQuillan's place, was succeeded by Greenfield.

The Cardinals now will win the National League pennant even if they lose both their remaining games and the Reds win theirs.

The score by innings today follows:

St. Louis	050 000 100—6-12-0
New York	300 000 010—4-13-0

Philadelphia, Sept. 24.—Cincinnati passed out of the National League pennant race here today by losing the first game of a double-header to Philadelphia, 9-2.

The double-header was made necessary by yesterday's fifteen-inning tie game, in which the two teams battled to a 6-6 score.

In the second game, Cincinnati led, 3 to 2, in the third inning.

But the damage had been done.

City May Purchase New Electric Pump

Council Authorities Addition to Water Plant Equipment at Special Meeting Last Night.

Purchase of another electric pump for the Maryville water plant is authorized by an ordinance passed last night at a special meeting of the City Council.

The new pump is to be of the triplex type, capable of delivering 500 gallons of water a minute and its cost is estimated from $2,500 to $3,500. It will supplement the present electric pump, which delivers 360 gallons a minute, and the two steam pumps, each of 550-gallon capacity, used in emergencies.

The purchase of an additional electric pump was one of the recommendations made by the fire insurance inspectors after their recent visit here. In case of fire or other emergency, the second pump can be turned on and its power added to that of the first in an instant. With the steam pumps it is sometimes necessary to wait while fires are built.

Bids on the new pump are to be received on the afternoon of September 28.

Southeast Missouri Needs Cotton Pickers

Wages Now $1.25 Per Hundred With Board and Room But Will Probably Be Increased.

The planters in southeast Missouri are very much in need of cotton pickers, according to a communication from Roye B. Hinkle, state commissioner of labor. The wages are now $1.25 per hundred, with room and board furnished. In all probability wages will increase within the next few days. Colored help is most desired but anyone wanting work can secure it. A temporary office has been established at Hayti, Mo., under the supervision of George H. Hubbard, deputy labor commissioner. He will be glad to place all those making application for work.

Long Nighties Bad; Short Skirts Saving Many Women's Lives

Bridgeport, O.—Short skirts are saving the lives of many women, Coroner Clyde C. Hardesty of Belmont county said today.

The coroner bases his statement on the fact that, for two years, he has not had a fatality due to dresses igniting at bonfires or open grates. During the first two years of his service in Ohio's eighth largest county, six such tragedies occurred.

Long night gowns are causing some fatalities, Hardesty's records show. Each winter sees a number of babies and women dying of burns caused when long nightgowns ignite from open grates or gas stoves.

HEARTBROKEN, JACK MOANS

IT WAS A TERRIBLE "FIGHT," DEMPSEY ADDS.

GENE IS ALL SMILES

His Next Fight To Be Next Summer, Rickard Announces—Kearns Says He's Satisfied.

Philadelphia, Sept. 24.—"I am heart broken; simply heart broken."

In a voice breaking with emotion, Jack Dempsey, his grim face cut and bruised, slowly spoke these words today as he arose from a restless night's sleep with the realization that he had lost his title as heavyweight champion of the world.

The proud, sensitive Dempsey sat on the edge of his bed in his hotel room an inconsolable figure.

"Tunney beat me. He beat me fairly and squarely," Dempsey said slowly. "He beat me at my own game of slugging and he whipped me at it. I haven't any alibi. I just don't know what was the matter with me. I couldn't get going. I fought a terrible fight, a terrible fight."

"What has been the greatest ambition of my life has been realized. I have won the heavyweight championship of the world. But in winning the championship, I set another goal for myself and that is to be worthy of the title, to be a champion in fact as well as in name."

In that earnest and modest manner did Gene Tunney accept the honor he won last night.

"Not one of Dempsey's punches hurt me. Jack fought a clean fight. My plans for the immediate future are, of course, not yet completed. They are in the hands of Billy Gibson, my manager."

Philadelphia, Sept. 24.—Gene Tunney's next fight will take place next summer. The new world's heavyweight champion may fight either a return match with Jack Dempsey, whom he decisively defeated last night, or Thomas Loughran, the pride of Philadelphia.

Harry Wills, negro contender, will not be given a shot at Tunney.

This was announced this afternoon by Tex Rickard, promoter. The statement of Rickard was echoed by Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney.

Philadelphia, Sept. 24.—Promoter Tex Rickard, after balancing his books, informed International News Service this afternoon that the gate receipts at the Dempsey-Tunney match here last night amounted to $1,895,733.40.

Of this amount, Rickard estimated Dempsey's share at $700,000. He was fighting on a guarantee and a percentage basis. Tunney's share was $200,000. Rickard estimated his own profits at $500,000.

Philadelphia, Sept. 24.—"I brought Jack Dempsey up to what he was and I helped to bring him down. I am satisfied."

This was the statement of Jack Kerns, former manager of Dempsey, in an interview this afternoon. Kearns has been in the limelight recently, having filed numerous court actions against the former champion.

Dempsey's friends were quoted shortly before the fight to the effect that Kearn's court action had a great deal to do with destroying Dempsey's peace of mind.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 24.—With his face beaten into a bloody mask Jack Dempsey passed the heavyweight championship of the world along to Gene Tunney last night at the end of ten strange rounds of fighting that began in a trickle of rain and wound up in a downpour. More than 130 thousand frantic citizens stood in the rain, open-mouthed and only able to utter weird squawks as Dempsey tottered to his corner at the last bell with his left eye sealed shut and the entire left side of his face bulging like some horrible growth, to plunge into the arms of his handlers in collapse.

Tunney, unmarked and with the same rather pained smile on his face that he wore when he entered the ring, turned to his people in his corner, dazed almost as badly as Dempsey by the unexpected ease with which he had beaten the fellow who held the championship since the summer of 1919 under the awesome title of the man-killer.

Jack a Second Rater.

It wasn't a man killer that Gene

Race Riots Break Out in Storm-Swept Miami

Two Negroes Are Wounded By Marines When Caught Looting Store —Armed Forces To Scene.

Miami, Fla., Sept. 24.—Race rioting broke out in devastated Miami today.

Two marines, who caught two negroes in the act of looting a store in the colored section of the city were wounded, and only the combined efforts of sixty police officers with riot guns, twenty-five deputy sheriffs and two companies of state troopers prevented more casualties.

Armed forces rushed to the negro district and ordered all persons off the streets and posted guards at every corner.

RECORD TAKEN BY DAUGHERTY

BROTHER SAYS FORMER CABINET MEMBER DESTROYED IT.

LEDGER S MISSING

Deposits on Which Dovernment Bases Much of Conspiracy Case Are Not Shown.

New York, Sept. 24.—Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general of the United States, destroyed the records of his accounts in the Midland National Bank at Washington, according to his brother, Mal S. Daugherty, who testified today at the trial of the former cabinet member and Col. Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian.

Harry M. Daugherty also destroyed the accounts of the late Jesse Smith and of Mal S. Daugherty, the bank president testified.

Daugherty and Miller are on trial charged with conspiracy in connection with the return of seven million dollars worth of assets seized during the war.

The government bases much of its case on a cashier's check deposited in Daugherty's bank. The ledger sheets recording the deposits are missing. Daugherty and Jesse Smith both had accounts in the bank.

"What did you do with the missing records?" Mal Daugherty was asked.

"I gave them to my brother, Harry M. Daugherty," the witness answered.

"Did he tell you what he had done with them?"

"He told me that he had destroyed them," the banker replied.

Middle West Now in Grip of Cold Wave

Killing Frosts And Near-Freezing Temperatures Are Predicted For Tomorrow—Snow in Montana.

Des Moines, Sept. 24.—A cold wave of unusual proportions today held states from Iowa to Washington and Oregon in its grip, according to Charles D. Green, government forecaster here. Killing frosts and near-freezing temperatures are predicted for tomorrow.

Snow covers Montana and parts of northern Wyoming. The temperature at Helena today was six above zero.

Ten inches of snow have fallen in Calgary, Canada, in the last few days.

Hot Water Fatal to Stanberry Engineer

George Tropp Stumbles Into Pit; Walks Home; Lives Only a Few Hours.

George L. Tropp, night engineer at Stanberry, died yesterday morning from burns received Wednesday night when he fell into a pit of hot water at the Wabash pumping station, located west of Stanberry.

Tropp had presence of mind to hold to a pipe as he fell. Blistered from hand to foot he climbed from the pit and started home. He told physicians that he stumbled over a spike nail and fell headlong into the pit of water. He lived five or six hours after the accident.

The pit usually does not contain water, but the recent floods caused a seven-foot supply on hand. Only a few hours before the accident Tropp had been discussing the dangers of the water.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

W. E. Goforth To Davenport.

W. E. Goforth will leave this afternoon for Davenport, Ia., where he will visit his son, Donald, who is playing with the Warden's Blackhawk Hotel Orchestra.

MAY REMAIN OUT OF COURT

U. S. ENTRY NOW CONSIDERED DOUBTFUL.

WON'T BACK DOWN

Powers Must Accept All Of America's Reservations—Pro-Court Forces Are Gloom.

Washington, Sept. 24.—America's actual entrance into the world court has been projected into the dim and misty future, if it has not been shattered entirely by the action of the powers at Geneva in evading the fifth Senate reservation.

This represents the concensus of opinion in Washington, pro-court and anti-court alike. The irreconcilables are elated over the refusal of the powers to accept the fifth reservation, which states that the world court may not render an advisory opinion in any case in which the United States has or claims to have an interest without the consent of this government.

The pro-court forces are correspondingly gloom and yet rather helpless to remedy the present situation.

If the powers abide by the decision reached at Geneva, and there is every reason to believe they will, the only way the United States can enter the court is for President Coolidge to resubmit the question to the Senate. The irreconcilables say the administration will not dare adopt such a course for the pendulum of Senate opinion has swung the other way. It now seems doubtful if a majority could be mustered today in favor of it, let alone a two-thirds vote.

The next step in the situation is for the powers to send notes to the state department notifying this government of the acceptance of the reservations with a special interpretation of the fifth. It will then be the duty of the department to send replies that such interpretation is not acceptable to this government and then it will be up to the powers to decide anew whether they will accept America on her own terms.

Geneva, Sept. 24.—All members of the world court today were expected to sign the conditional acceptance of America's reservations before the end of the League of Nations assembly.

The acceptance was adopted by the conference of member nations during the discussion which ended yesterday.

At noon today, seventeen nations had signed the conditional acceptance. This means that those nations have accepted without condition the first, second and third American reservations, and the first half of the fifth. Conditions attached to the fourth reservation stipulate that the court members, at a later date, might withdraw their action in accepting the second part of the fourth and the fifth reservations.

Acceptance of the second half of the fifth depends upon agreements to be negotiated between the United States government with the various court members.

The fourth American reservation was designed to give the United States veto power with respect to amendments to the court statutes. The questionable part of the fifth reservation would give the United States the right to veto requests for advisory opinions from the court.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart.
NEA Service Writer.

Washington. — Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland is now unmistakably in the limelight as a Democratic presidential possibility.

It all depended on his renomination as chief executive of the Cockade State at the recent primary. Beaten, he'd have been out of consideration for the presidency. Overwhelmingly victorious, he's in the running.

It remains for him to be re-elected in November, and Maryland isn't always a Democratic state, but it always is except when there's disunion in the state Democracy's ranks, and there are no signs of it at present.

So it's reasonably safe to assume that the governor will succeed himself by a satisfactory majority.

Ritchie's limelight isn't quite as bright as Al Smith's or William G. McAdoo's.

If, however, Smith's and McAdoo's limelights cancel one another in 1928, as they did in 1924, then Ritchie's limelight will be about as good as anybody's.

It may or may not have to compete with Atlee Pomerene's.

In case Pomerene's elected to the Senate from Ohio, he'll have a powerful limelight, but if he's beaten, he won't have any.

Senator Jim Reed's limelight isn't burned on full blast as yet, and it's too soon to predict how much it will brighten, or whether it will go out altogether.

In the opinion of politicians, Senator Jim was a little too slow in getting into the presidential limelight.

Cattle Car Shortage From Recent Floods

Bazaar, Kan., Sept. 23.—A temporary shortage of cattle cars by the Santa Fe which is an aftermath of the recent floods is putting a crimp in the movement of grass cattle to market.

This is the first time so far this season that cattlemen have not been able to obtain all the cars they desired and it is likely that the shortage is temporary.

The Santa Fe has plenty of cars, according to local railroad men, but the flood damage to many of their lines has hampered their movement to points where they are needed. The out-going shipment of cattle from Chase County will be light for several days.

Cornhuskers Have 5 New Men in Line-Up

Lincoln, Nebr., Sept. 24.—Heavier than the 1925 eleven that gave the Cornhuskers a 14 to 0 drubbing in a snowstorm at Des Moines last year, will be the fighting bunch of gridsters that Coach Ossie Solem will bring to Lincoln on October 2, the date of the Nebraska-Drake contest. That alone spells trouble for the Cornhuskers, who will enter the field with at least five green men in the starting lineup.

Seven of the letter men who have reported to Coach Solem this fall have had two years of experience, while the other four have lattered once. All eleven are out to repeat the surprise victory of last season.

Mrs. A. E. Hayden came last night from Neodesha, Kan., to visit her sons, Walter and Will Hayden, and family, northeast of Maryville.

NODAWAY COUNTY FARM NEWS

By BILLY TILSON.

L. A. Stelter, west of Maryville, sent a fine load of hogs yesterday to the market. They were of the "thin rind" variety and there were eighty head in the consignment, averaging 230 pounds. L. A. puts his faith in the "thin rind." He has a large herd of spring and fall shoats and brood sows left on the farm. He says he has had good success with his hogs this year and he expects a nice profit for his labor. These three loads sent out by Yates, Belt and Stelter were all of their own raising and as even and well finished as will generally be seen gotten together. Mr. Yates and Mr. Belt accompanied the shipment and the boys should get around the top of today's market.

Pat Ashford, east of Skidmore, had twenty-five head of fine shoats disappear in the last big rain that sent the Elkhorn creek out of banks. He thought at first that he would find them in some pasture or field but up to date has been unable to locate them and thinks now they were carried down the stream and drowned. Willard Nickols living north of Mr. Ashford's lost seven 200-lb. hogs at the same time and has never been able to locate them and he has given them up as being lost in the rushing waters that swept Elkhorn.

Henry Horton and wife, west of Ravenwood, were Maryville visitors yesterday. Mr. Morton has some corn that he would like to put in the shock but the fields are in such condition that a binder cannot be used. He says if it keeps on raining he will have to fall back to the old way. He expects to put in quite an aereage of wheat but the weather doesn't look very favorable at the present time.

Charles Scott of ElCentria, Cali., is visiting friends and relatives in and around Pickering, and also Maryville. Mr. Scott formerly lived near Pickering, but went to California eighteen years ago. This is his second trip back in that time.

C. R. Harmon and wife, and Mrs. L. E. Mofford of Pickering were visiting in Maryville yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Beattie, north of Barnard, were visiting in the city yesterday. Mr. Beattie says he doesn't know whether those that want to sow wheat will ever find the ground in condition before too late for sowing.

Ernest Moore, Farmers Shipping Agent at Maryville, had out a load of hogs and cattle yesterday sending them to the St. Joseph market.

John Yates, southwest of Maryville, shipped out 80 head of 228-pound hogs yesterday and will have them on the market today. These were winter pigs and made a splendid growth. They were the moneymaking Duroc-Jersey breed. John has 84 head of spring shoats and 80 head of fall pigs on the farm beside his fine bunch of brood sows. John says those big red hogs look good to him.

D. O. Belt, south of town, shipped out a fine load of hogs yesterday. They were the big black kind on which Mr. Belt stakes his judgment. In the load were fifty-two head of 230-pound hogs and twelve head of great big black sows that averaged 500 pounds. D. O. has 95 head of spring shoats and 80 head of fall pigs and a fine herd of brood sows left on the farm and thinks he will raise plenty of corn to feed them.

Hospital Won't Care for Wounded Bandits

St. Louis, Sept. 24.—Wounded gangsters and bandits who avoid the city institutions which are watched closely by police, will not be received at the St. Louis Baptist Hospital in the future. Ordinarily, gunshot cases are taken to the city hospital where a public record of entries is kept, where there is a prison ward and where the police are on duty 24 hours a day.

The Baptist hospital was in the line of fire recently when cuckoos launched a volley at Italians leaving the hospital after visiting a friend, one of the men shot in a feud. Police are hampered in their investigation when gunshot cases go to private hospitals, it also was pointed out.

Recalls September Snow 45 Years Ago

Walking to dinner with Jim Hunt last Thursday when it was about 92 in the shade he told us that 45 years ago today (Thursday it snowed and that in the evening there was four inches of snow on the ground. He remembers the day well because it was his birthday and he was teaching school.—Worth County Tribune.

"A GUARANTEED EDUCATION" FOR YOUR CHILD

by C. W. Rogers of Maryville
(Formerly Head of Dept. of Commerce, S. T. C.)

The biggest problem facing "Mother and Daddy" today is the education of their helpless little kiddies. What provision have you made for your child's education?

The BANKERS LIFE has a plan that will guarantee your child an education in the event of your death. It will step in and complete the task you have begun. Best of all, this wonderful plan can be made to fit almost any pocket-book.

If your insurance program does not include a policy of this kind, it is not sufficient. Call Hanamo 4650, or drop me a card and let me explain this plan in detail. Please do not feel that you will be obligated at all. It is my desire to be of service in any way I can.

PACKARD IN 1906—PACKARD IN 1926

Prest-O-Lite served them both

When we look at a 1906 Packard, it is a little difficult at first for us to realize that this car gave the motorists of twenty years ago the same thrill that the Packard of 1926 gives us today.

Yet it is not difficult when we remember that they are both Packards in every sense of the word.

Twenty years have brought with them many changes—changes in design, changes in construction, changes in equipment, changes in material.

But one thing has not changed since the first Packard rolled out of the factory. This one thing is the unswerving determination of the Packard Motor Car Company to make the Packard car as fine in every detail as is humanly possible.

It is significant that Prest-O-Lite served Packard in 1906 and that it serves Packard in 1926—significant of the fact that Prest-O-Lite has kept fully abreast of the astonishing progress of the motor-car industry.

Prest-O-Lite is extremely proud that it meets the exacting Packard requirements of today just as it met them twenty years ago.

The Man Who Invented Thrift

lived a good many thousands of years ago, and history, sacred or profane, tells us nothing of him. It is safe to say, however, that the man who first practiced thrift became a leader of his tribe and died in peace and plenty.

Men and women who are thrifty get ahead. That is an axiom that is well known to people who are versed in things financial. Those who save not are those who have not and who get nowhere. The whole thing is up to you—but you must decide NOW!

HAIG ARKLIN SPEAKS TO HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS.

URGES DEVELOPMENT

Nation, Rich in Material Resources, Now Should Turn Some Attention To Fine Arts, He Says.

Haig Arklin, an artist traveling under the auspices of the American Art Culture Association, was in Maryville today with an extensive gallery of paintings. For one hour this afternoon he entertained grade and high school students in the auditorium of the Maryville High School.

The American Art Culture Association is composed of a number of educators who are importing prints of the world's greatest masterpieces for showing in the schools of the country. The collection sent on tour is valued at $10,000 and is so large and fascinating in color that the audience is inspired and appreciative of the entertainment.

"We are certain that the reproductions will be inspiring and the lecture helpful. What we have to give to the schools of America will create a higher appreciation of art," Mr. Arklin said in an interview.

"America is a young nation and does not have much time to think of art. As a pioneering nation, America has been forced to concentrate its energies in material development of land. Today America has become supreme among the nations of the world in industry, invention and wealth. It is time that we turn some of our desires and geniuses to the immortal languages of fine arts and produce great works as a nation in the language of architecture, in pictures, in sculpture and in song."

Mr. Arklin has visited forty-two states of the Union with a higher love for art his ultimate goal. He has spent two years in Europe at the great galleries of art reproducing pictures for his American audience. In the Orient he spent some time in wide experience of travel and he spent six months in Palestine studying Arabian and desert life.

During the summer months Mr. Arklin spends his time in the National parks of the country trying to record some of the glories and fascinations of mountain scenery and also to portray the distinctive grandeur of American deserts.

The artist has his own studio of original paintings in Los Angeles, Cal.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Wins Another National Record---

"Cannon Ball" Baker of Indianapolis arrived in Los Angeles, Calif., driving his own Ford roadster sealed in high gear, just 5 days, 2 hours and 13 minutes after leaving New York City. He was officially timed at start and finish by Western Union officials.

This was 2 days, 13 hours and 45 minutes faster than the fastest time ever made before by any kind of car with one man driving the entire distance from coast to coast without relay drivers. The previous one man speed record over this course had been made by Baker in 1920, driving a $2,000 car and this record was never equalled until he made this flight at the wheel of his Ford runabout.

This is another proof that Ford cars are the most dependable for long cross country trips over all kinds of roads.

—Plenty of speed.
—Quick pick-up.
—Quick acting brakes.
—Easy steering.
—Comfortable riding.

Cleveland Subway to Cost 40 Million

One Penny From Every Fare To Pay Loans City Needs For Work.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 24.—A $40,000,000, subway system for a penny from every man, woman and child who rides a street car.

That is the plan of Raymond T. Cragin, organizer of the Cleveland Subway company, and formerly representative in Cleveland of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Figures prominent in the nations' financial affairs are behind the "Penny Subway Line," it was learned. Through the backing of the Rockefellers, Sr., and Jr., who have extensive holdings in Cleveland, a New York bank has agreed to lend the necessary money, estimated at $40,000,000, to Cragin and his associates with which to build the subway. The Van Sweringen's Cleveland's prominent railroad promoters have also signified their intention of backing the project.

Plans Soon Ready.

Cragin's plans, which he will present to the Cleveland City Council when the necessary papers for a franchise are prepared call for the construction of a 12 mile subway at somewhat less than $4,000,000 a mile.

The subway is to be built with money borrowed from the New York bank and in order to pay off the debt street car and bus fares are to be increased one cent per ride, the increase to be turned into the city coffers, under Cragin's proposal.

Estimates reveal that one and one-fourth of the population of a city is moved via street cars each day, Cragin said.

Population Grows

Cleveland's population is hovering about the 1,000,000 mark and at that average the penny ride for each person would add $12,500 a day to the city's treasury; or $4,562,000 a year. In twelve years the city would be able to take over the system at the cost of construction plus accrued interest, according to Cragin.

City officials can then lease the subway system to any railway company desirable and the city treasury will be the recipient of a large yearly rental, the promoter declares.

This will be the first time that a subway project to be paid by the people's pennies will be tried in any city the promoter said. The present carfare in Cleveland is 6 cents, with a penny extra for transfers.

Father Keeler Is Now in London, England

Will Then Go To Rome Where He Will Teach Philosophy—Was Born In Maryville.

The Rev. Father Leo W. Keeler, son of Mrs. Mary Keeler, formerly of Maryville, now living in Kansas City, has just finished giving a retreat in Florennes, Belgium, and is now proceeding to London where he will conduct another one.

From London, Father Keeler will go to Rome where he is assigned to the professor's chair of philosophy in the Gregoriano. This university has an attendance of about 1,400 students, who come from all parts of the world. The student body consists not only of Jesuits, but of other religious and secular students as well.

The Rev. Father Keeler, who was born in Maryville, is the only American on the staff of professors. He spent the first years of his preparation for the priesthood with the Benedicties at Conception and at the grand seminary of Montreal, Canada.

Will Leaves $16,000 to School District

Mrs. Marian M. Brooks Endows Savannah School System With Fund for Library Purposes.

The funeral of Mrs. Marian M. Brooks was held at the home Saturday afternoon with the address by Rev. A. D. Seelig and it is understood that by her will when it is probated she names the Savannah school library as a beneficiary. This can be verified and published when the will is probated.

However, it is understood that the will leaves to her niece, Miss Sadie L. McKnight, the income of the property her lifetime. It will total around $16,000. At the death of Miss McKnight the property in its entirety will go as an endowment fund to the Savannah school district and only the income can be used for library purposes.—Savannah Reporter.

Score One for Pedestrian

It has been demonstrated by facts and figures that walkers make almost as good time on a short trip, say a mile, in congested parts of the large cities, as do surface cars and automobiles. They even make better time in a trip of a couple of blocks. What with delays at cross streets, one-way streets and other traffic blocks during the busy hours of the day the pedestrian really has the advantage over the vehicle. In longer distances, for those whose daily trip between home and office is two miles or less, the overall speed of the walkers averages 3.7 miles an hour, trolley car riders average 4.1 miles an hour, motor-bus riders make 4.5 miles an hour and automobile passengers go 5.7 miles an hour.

For those who travel from two to six miles between home and business the average overall pace is 7.2 miles an hour for the trolley riders, 7.5 miles an hour for the motor-bus passengers, and 10.6 miles an hour for the private automobile user.

Bullet-Proof Auto Bodies

Automobile bodies of a bullet-proof metal that cannot be distinguished in appearance from the usual material have been constructed for police and other special uses, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The metal is the same as that of which bullet-proof vests have been fashioned and its efficiency lies in its ability to absorb the impact of a missile, allowing the vibrations to spread and thus preventing perforation. Unlike stiff, heavy armor plates, it can be cut or punched easily, and bodies constructed of it are well within the weight limits of the car's chassis, a sheet of the metal being only about one-sixteenth-inch thick and weighing but two and one-half pounds to the square foot. It also has a surface that takes any kind of automobile finish.

15, Must Hang

Adam Burress, 15, has been sentenced to hang Oct. 29 at Welch, W. Va., following his conviction of criminal assault on a nine-year-old girl. The judge instructed the jury that they could not consider Burress' age, and they convicted him in nine minutes.

Star Witness

Miss Peggy Cavanaugh, 23, is being held incommunicado under $10,000 bail at Canton, Ohio, as star government witness in the murder of Don R. Mellett, murdered publisher. Authorities say she rode with Patrick McDermott, fugitive who is under indictment for the crime, a few nights before the murder and will testify at the trials of Ben Rudner and Louis Mazer his alleged accomplices.

Got His Man

It took two years and 3000 miles of travel, but Benjamin Turner got his man. He shot James D. Hallen, soldier of fortune, to death in Portland, Me. They had known each other in Mexico. Turner refused to tell what sort of grudge he nursed.

Nothing on Him

Button Gwinnett Rush, an Augusta capitalist, is justly proud of the fact that one of his ancestors signed the Declaration of Independence.

A few days ago Egbert Cohen, a wealthy young realtor, walked into Mr. Rush's office and found him signing checks.

"Aha," said Mr. Cohen, after a minute or two, "you're a great little signer, aren't you?"

"I ought to be," said Mr. Rush. "One of my ancestors, you know, signed the Declaration."

"Well," said Mr. Cohen complacently, "I guess you haven't got anything on me. One of my ancestors signed the Ten Commandments."

HAD GOLF LINKS IN AMERICA LONG AGO

Evidence That Game Was Played in Year 1760.

The inquiries made by those who have searched into the history of golf have elicited a fund of interesting lore, and there are several outstanding points which seem to have escaped attention completely by most of the players of this day.

The most startling of these is that golf was first played, not in Scotland, which is generally supposed to have been its birthplace, but in Holland. In its primeval form the sport is believed to have been only a crude outline of what it is in its modern raiment, but the basic principles were unquestionably there.

In my time it has always amounted to sacrilege to advocate radical reforms in the game. The slight changes have invariably been more of an expedient nature than constitutional. A manifesto of the ancient St. Andrews club of Scotland reads: "The game ceases to be golf as soon as the rules are broken at pleasure." This refers more to arbitrary violations by individuals, but the spirit back of it is the same as that which keeps the game free from tampering.

There is scattered evidence that golf was played sporadically in this country more than a century previous to the time it was placed on an enduring basis in 1888, the year which is now accepted as marking its real beginning. I have heard authorities on the early history of the game tell of a blue law passed in the city of Albany, N. Y., in 1700, forbidding Sunday play.

It is traditional that wherever Scotsmen went they took the game with them, in exactly the same manner as baseball today follows Americans over the face of the globe. In New York, the members of the St. Andrews society, which was founded in 1756 and was the outgrowth of the Scots society of New York, its senior by 12 years, made a practice of providing entertainment for the men who came here with the Scottish regiments in Colonial days. Golf was one of the diversions which it encouraged among the soldiers from the native land.

But whatever golf was played here then was of an unorganized and local nature. It gained no foothold among native Americans. There is not even any record to show that it stirred sufficient interest to be worthy of the ridicule which greeted its revival more than one hundred years later. And with the Revolution it died, leaving only a few mourners, who, in spite of the clannish Scottish spirit and the traditional Scottish love for old customs, were unable to refan the flame to life.

It is unquestionably true that here and there over the land were Scotsmen who continued to swing clubs and at times even banded together and mapped out courses, as the records of Texas and other Southern localities show; but it remains that no effort to launch golf in the United States was genuinely successful until 38 years ago. The fact that it had meanwhile taken strong hold in Canada seemed to be without effect.—Jerome D. Travers and James R. Crowell, in the Saturday Evening Post.

Sounds to Control Fires

The use of sound waves as fire extinguishers and a weapon in warfare is called a possibility by Howard Coonley, civilian director for the chemical warfare service in the New England district.

"It is possible in time that the tone wave of every building in a great city could be ascertained and at a central fire station a tuning fork would be set up," Mr. Coonley says. "In case of fire the tuning fork would be vibrated and in a few minutes the fire would be extinguished.

"That sounds extravagant, but many of you will live to see it done."

Experiments, he said, had already been conducted on his own house. The reason why the vibrations would not shake the house into a mass of ruin was that the adjustment would be just enough out of tune.

Light Aids Surgeons

Surgeons performing operations, laboratory workers, engravers and others are aided by a shadowless light developed in France. The rays are reflected upon the surface to be illuminated in such a manner that the hands, or any other body held between the lamp and the working area, cannot obscure the surface by their shadows. This effect is secured by a cylindrical prismatic lens and a set of silvered reflectors adjusted around the inside of the lamp bowl which is of sheet metal. The light can be concentrated by focusing. A cover glass keeps the heat from persons below, and the shade is counterweighted so that the lamp may be tilted.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Smart Kid

"Several years' experience with youngsters has taught me that you cannot outsmart them," says a city bus conductor. "Last Sunday morning two little girls, one of them about five years old and the other about six, boarded my empty bus. They selected a seat and the younger one proceeded to perch herself on her sister's lap. Before taking their fares, I asked why they were sitting like that when there was so much room. 'Why?' asked the older one. 'She is my baby and I am holding her in my arms and I am only going to pay one fare.'"

Wm. Southern, Jr.

This is a review lesson.

It covers a period in Hebrew history in which a great leader appeared and brought the Hebrews from slavery to freedom. The same leader became a law maker and converted these same slaves into a free people, self reliant and law abiding. The story as told in Exodus and Leviticus gives us a very good idea of how law and orderly living may take the place of the claw and the fang and the club.

The towering figure in the whole story is Moses. Not only is Moses a towering figure in Hebrew history, but he is a towering figure in the history of all times, a versatile, strong magnificient leader of men. The fame of Alexander the Great seems small when compared to that of Moses, and Napoleon was only a pigmy with an inordinate egotism and not much moral conviction.

If we compare Moses with other great men in history, both sacred and profane, we at once find a great difference. Most famous characters who have made an impress upon the world and who have won a place in history were men of force and driving power from a purely materialistic point of view, men of blood and of strong armies.

Moses went into partnership with God when he spent the long nights taking care of his father-in-law's sheep in Midian, sealed the compact at the burning bush and the firm stood undissolved until his partner buried him on the Mount.

The high points in the story are the passover, the escape, the crossing of the Red sea, the training at the Mount Sinai, the rebellion of the people, the almost despair of Moses, his constant communion with God, the giving of the ten commandments, the building and equipping of the tabernacle and the bringing of the statute laws as told in Leviticus.

Moses had an awful job on his hands when he had safely negotiated the Red Sea and had put miles of desert between himself and the Egyptians. There he was in charge of a mob of men and women who did not know how to do anything, who knew not the meaning of self government, who had been accustomed to being fed and ordered to tasks of which they did not even know the meaning. Their brains were dormant for want of exercise. They were a cringing lot with an inferiority complex.

Thus the bringing in of the law bulks large in the story. The way was paved with the Ten Commandments, which was a declaration of principles. These principles bulk large as far back into history as we can go, bulk large in our history making today and will bulk large as long as civilization lasts on earth.

The only way Moses ever accomplished his work was through his partnership with God. He went to God in every perplexity and his partner never failed him. I have always been shy of partnerships in business. I have seen so many go on the rocks that I am a corporation myself. The finest and most successful partnership we know in our human lives is the partnership between a man and a woman, who vow to live as partners at the marriage altar. Wrecks come to such partnerships, it is true, one partner fails, or, perhaps both get balky and pull apart instead of together. If all of us made marriage a real partnership, the divorce lawyers would go out of business.

Some men seem to think that the marriage ceremony appoints them the treasurer of the partnership and the custodian of the funds. They dole out small amounts with a scowl and force the woman to beg for what is as much hers as his. This method dissolves the partnership and becomes a tyrrany.

It makes me feel mighty good to know that if I wish to do so I may have the same partner who made the life of Moses so successful. Every Christian is God's partner and no man can be much of a Christian on his own account. Those great men who wrote the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States wrote into those immortal documents a partnership agreement with God. And God is still a partner in the business of this great nation of ours.

Of course I know that some of us have defaulted and tried to run away with the funds of the firm. I know that some of us have conspired against our partner and tried to turn the business over to the Devil. I know that most of us have been very careless of our duties in the partnership, and that about fifty per cent of us when election time comes fail to even go to the polls and vote for directors who will put the business back into line. We are too prosperous and fat and luxury loving and do not like the old fashioned ways of the partner who never failed Moses. It is very fortunate for us that he is today like he was then. Moses got mad and busted the tables of stone and he got arrogant and assumed too much authority, but his partner did not abandon him. So I am quite sure that our partner will not abandon us and that He will always come to our rescue when we run the old business into the hands of a receiver.

For ten years we have been going through terrible times. We have lost our grip on the essentials of living. Our boys and girls have thrown aside the old family bonds and the jazz spirit has set us wild.

I think I sense a change, a change backed to sanity. It seems to me that the girls do not paint their lips and their faces quite so vividly, that business is coming out of the boom stage, that we are demanding more insistently that the laws be enforced and what is more to the point, are demanding that decent people obey the laws. We are going to church more and are coming to a better understanding of what Sunday means.

Crawford Johnson gives this thought which rings in my mind and the more I think of it, the sounder logic it seems. He says:

"No sabbath, no worship, no worship, no religion, no religion, no morals; no morals, then—pandemonium."

I am in the court of public opinion asking that a permanent injunction be granted against the dissolution of the partnership between this nation and people with God.

Some Rural Churches Already Abandoned

Auctioneer To Sell Building and Contents In Taylor County, Iowa— Auto Much To Blame.

(Clarinda Herald)

Some country churches are quitting. Two such churches are in Taylor County, near Bedford and Gravity. What was formerly known as the Morning Star Presbyterian Church, six miles west of Bedford employed Auctioneer Cummings & Wells to auction off their property Sept. 16th., the building, oak pews and fixtures, and one acre of ground, all going under the hammer, because the fast running auto carries folks to town quickly, and such a church in the country is no longer supported. The Gilead Church near Gravity is another country charge that is closing, for lack of local support. For year the Gilead Church has been on the Gravity charge, and it is a matter of regret to the faithful ones who have received inspiration there that the doors must be closed. Some of the communicants will be going to Gravity to church, others to New Market, others to Bedford—some probably go no place at all. Instead of serving the Gilead Church, it is likely that the pastor at Gravity will be asked by the coming Methodist conference to take over the charge at Oak Hill, a church that has better roads leading to it from Gravity, so the pastor may get to and fro, and still serve as the center to keep a Sunday School going in the country. In Page County we think of three churches closed, but not yet sold out; the North Grove Church, Fairview Church west of it, and the church at Rose Hill north of Clarinda.

Ravenwood Orchestra Plays at Pickering

High School Musicians Give Concert For Benefit of Christian Church There Friday Night.

(Ravenwood Gazette.)

The Ravenwood High School Orchestra, accompanied by other Ravenwood talent, went to Pickering Friday night where they rendered a program for the benefit of the Christian Church, which is making some needed improvements. The Ravenwood number was one of five programs put on for the church. The program was highly appreciated and each individual delivered their part in an excellent manner. We are proud of the musical talent in our school and each patron should assist in every way to boost it more to the front each year. Several people from here accompanied the orchestra, making the total number around seventy. The program as rendered follows:

Violin duet—Geraldine Hunt and Audrey Nelson.
Flute solo—Raymond Crater.

AT PICKERING
Christian Church.

The Chautauqua, which was to have closed last Sunday night, closed Thursday night instead, because of hinderances by rain. While the audiences were not large, due to the weather conditions the Chautauqua was a decided success in several ways. The talent from the different towns all gave wonderful programs. Wednesday night, in the absence of the Elmo group, who were unable to come, Mrs. R. E. Snodgrass sang several selections, and Rev. J. T. Alsup gave a lecture. Friday night the program was furnished entirely by Pickering talent.

Special mention should be made of the loyal support given the Ravenwood High School orchestra by the people of that community. In all, 86 people drove the long distance from Ravenwood to hear their orchestra. Such interest in their young people will bear delicious fruit.

Already plans are started for a Chautauqua for next year. A committee was appointed after the close of last night's program representing the churches, lodges, and school, to talk the matter and call a mass meeting soon to take steps toward training of talent this winter. Other communities also are talking of using the same idea.

We wish to express our deep appreciation to all who assisted in making our Home Talent Chautauqua what it was.

The regular services of the church will be held next Sunday. Bible School 10 a. m.; preaching at 11:00 and 7:30.

The C. E. Society recenily reorganized under the sponsorship of Mrs. C. R. Harmon, will meet at the church on Monday nights.

AT BURLINGTON JUNCTION
(From Burlington Junction Post)
Christian Church Notes

Forty-four in Sunday School last Sunday. Good for such a day.

And nearly that number at morning worship.

Teacher Training starts in October—the first week. Enroll now!

Our orchestra is surely doing nice work under the direction of Mrs. Cyltie Hackett Miller.

Your pastor delivered his sermon—lecture, "The Fire Art Of Living Together" at the Pickering chautauqua Tuesday night. This chautauqua was put on by the Christian church of Pickering and the programs were furnished by the different Christian churches and ministers of the county. In spite of rain the venture has been a great success.

Sunday night the pastor will begin his sermon series, "The Fundamentals of Religion." The theme of the first sermon is "Do You Believe in God?" These sermons will be plain, sane and simple. They are planned for our young people, but will benefit all. Come. There will be good music, too.

M. E. Church

With this issue, I begin the notes for the second year in Burlington Junction. Wife and I returned from Stanberry Sunday night and immediately took up the work for the year.

While the rain and flood and mud has greatly interfered with our church work of late, we are still hoping that matters in that particular will be settled soon, and that we can have a fine start before winter. Our motto will be "every man, woman and child doing his or her very best all the time." There will be services both morning and night next Sunday, preceded by the Sunday School. We hope to announce aur program for the year at that time. Hoping to greet a large crowd at all services next Sunday,

J. HOWARD THOMPSON, Pastor.

T. M. TAYLOR, Pastor.

AT CLEARMONT.
Christian Church.
(From the Clearmont News).

Sunday, Sept. 19th there was only 13 present at Sunday school and the collection was $1.05. That was very good attendance considering the rain and the condition of the roads.

Next Sunday let us meet the newly elected officers at Sunday school and support them in their efforts to strengthen our school. Sunday school at 10:00 a. m. Communion and church services at 11 o'clock. Everybody come and cooperate for the good of the church.

M. I. ROSE, Pastor.

Baptist Church.

Rain last Sunday prevented our having Sunday school at all. The first time we have failed entirely during the present pastorate. It rained so hard folks couldn't get there. The pastor was called to Rock Port to assist in the funeral of Deacon F. M. Underwood, on Wednesday. He was an old time friend of ours and his death is a severe blow to the Baptist church.

All regular services next Sunday. Preaching at both hours. Sunday school at 10:00 o'clock.

We extend a cordial invitation to all who desire to worship with us.

W. W. LAUGHLIN, Pastor.

M. E. Church.

The Conference at Stanberry is now a part of history. We had a splendid session. The St. Joseph District has Rev. E. L. Robinson for superintendent. Clearmont and Elmo will be looked after by Rev. Wm. Pitker, as pastor. He comes from Cainesville. He will be here for services on Sunday, Oct. 3. The next year I will be at Bolckow, about 28 miles north of St. Joseph. If roads and weather are good we expect to get moved the last of this week, going by truck. I want to bespeak a good year for my successor and hope the church will see a year of growth in all lines. Farewell to all my friends and blessings of God abide with you.

H. F. DORCAS, Pastor.

Minnesota Backwoods "Miracle Man" Has Plan for Three-Day World Praying

Tamarack, Minn., Sept. 24.—Vernon Ewing, backwoods "miracle man," has announced the completion of plans for a world's prayer" starting Friday, October 1, at 6 p. m., and lasting for three days.

Ewing, on June 1, conducted a "silent prayer" in a poplar grove near here, which failed to produce the miracle he anticipated.

Clergymen who opposed the "silent prayer" last spring have indorsed the proposed "world prayer" Mr. Ewing an itinerant fitter of eye glasses, said.

The first session of the world prayer will be silent and wordless and those participating will fall silent wherever they happen to be at 6 p. m., "Ewing declared in an interview with International News Service. "They will yield and submit their bodies and souls to God for one hour. Worshippers in New York and Washington will fall silent about one hour before the people who pray in Chicago, and thus the prayer will travel completely around the world.

"At 6 p. m., the following day the people who participated in the silent prayer will pray fervently for 15 minutes or so aloud or silently, depending upon the choice of worshippers.

"Commencing at 6 p. m., Sunday October 1, the third and last prayer session, in which worshippers will pray for one hour, will begin to circle the earth. Either silent or audible prayers may be offered up."

Those who pray will ask "the cleansing of sinners and the healing of the afflicted," Ewing said.

DRAMATIC EVENTS IN BIBLE HISTORY : : By Harlowe R. Hoyt and Walter Scott

The Judgment of Jehovah.

In the wilderness of Paran Jehovah commanded Moses to send spies into the land of Canaan. Moses picked twelve men, a prince from each of the tribes of Israel.
For forty days the spies traversed the Promised Land. When they returned, they brought back many spoils-grapes of Eshcol, and figs and pomgranites.
Ten of the spies reported a fertile land of milk and honey. But they told of warlike people in fortified cities and giants, and savage tribes and said that it were unwise to proceed.
Only Caleb and Joshua desired to give battle, and the people would have stoned them. They wished to return to Egypt. Angered at such cowardice, Jehovah doomed the Israelites to wander for forty years.

The VANITY CASE

by Carolyn Wells

NEA FICTION

© 1926 by G. P. PUTNAM SONS

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

In Harbor Gardens, Long Island, in an elaborte bungalow, lived PERRY HEATH and his wife, MYRA.

At the time the story opens the Heaths were entertaining as house guests:

LAWRENCE INMAN, a distant relative of Myra's and, aside from Perry, the only heir to her considerable fortune, and BUNNY MOORE, young, vivacious, golden-haired, an old friend of Myra's.

Myra Heath was a peculiar woman. She was cold, sarcastic. She did not love her husband, but seemed enamored of Inman. She never used cosmetics or dressed in colors. In fact, her hatred of color amounted to a passion. She collected rare old bottles and her latest was a whisky bottle which she was quite proud of but which aroused her artistic husband to scorn.

There is a growing intimacy between Perry Heath and Bunny. Myra, becoming provoked, declares that she has made her will in favor of Inman, cutting Perry off.

That night, after Bunny and Inman retire, Myra Heath alludes mysteriously to Perry's "secret." When Perry goes to bed, Inman comes down stairs, and he and Myra are discovered in each other's arms later by Perry.

The next morning, Mrs. Prentiss, who lives next door, was telling her nephew, Todhunter Buck, of some mysterious lights she had seen the night before in the Heath bungalow. While they are talking a loud scream from the Heath home interrupts their conversation.

That night Perry Heath, stealing downstairs, discovers his wife in Inman's arms and orders the latter out of the house by morning.

The next day the body of Myra Heath is found in the studio by a servant. A candle is burning at her head and feet, there is a big cut in her head and, strangest of all, her face is made up with cosmetics and she is dressed in outlandish colors.

HERRICK, the butler, after calling the doctor, steals some money from a drawer near the body and then dis- "The Work of Perry Heath."

The doctor, when he comes, finds covers, at Myra's feet, a card marked, that the death blow was struck with Myra's cherished whisky bottle. It is discovered then that Perry Heath is gone, his bed unslept in.

She has been killed by a blow with her cherished whisky bottle. When the coroner comes, Inman and Bunny are strangely nervous when made to answer questions. Meanwhile, at the Country Club the murder is the topic of conversation among SAM ANDERSON, AL CUNNINGHAM and others. MRS. PRENTISS, towing her nephew, TODHUNTER BUCK, goes over to the Heaths and invites Bunny to stay at her house next door. Bunny breaks out crying and Buck, at sight of her beauty, is her slave.

Mrs. Prentiss relates having seen mysterious lights appear and disappear, the night before, in the Heath home, and at the inquest testimony brings out the fact that Bunny Moore knew of the murder before the maid, who went to her room to inform her.

Finger prints of Inman and Bunny Moore are found on the bottle, and the coroner declares his belief that the murderer will be found in the household. Inman relates having seen a vanity case near the body, but that has disappeared. Physicians declare the rouge was applied to Myra Heath's face after death.

At the Country Club the murder is discussed by SAM ANDERSON, AL CUNNINGHAM, who is trying to solve the mystery, and others, some believing Perry Heath the murderer, others disagreeing. Cunningham suspects Bunny Moore is concealing something, calls on Moore is concealing something, calls on Mrs. Prentiss, who tells him about the mysterious lights. TODHUNTER BUCK, Mrs. Prentiss' nephew, suggests that Perry Heath also may have been murdered.

Bunny and Inman dine alone in the Heath house and the butler announces three callers.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIX

The three callers were Mrs. Prentiss and her nephew, Todhunter Buck; and with them was a young man, a stranger to Bunny, but an acquaintance to Inman, Alexander Cunningham.

"I'm out to find Perry Heath," Cunningham said, after they were all seated. "I'm sure you understand, Mr. Inman, the interest and anxiety felt by the Country Club members, and as they can't do much as a body, they're asked me to institute a search for Heath, and, also, to do what I can toward unraveling the mystery of Mrs. Heath's tragic death."

"Detective work?" asked Larry, in a non-committal voice.

"Yes, but not professional. Some men like Arthur Black, Sam Anderson, and others of that crowd, have, in a way, engaged me to do this, and I'm mighty glad to try. We are assuming that as the nearest kin of Mrs. Heath, you will sanction any and every effort to solve the mystery of the case."

"Well—I'm not sure about that," Inman said, slowly. "I want to know who killed my cousin, of course, but your blanket proposition as to 'any and every effort' seems to me a bit—er—unlimited."

"You want to limit it?" asked Cunningham, his cool grey eyes fixed on Larry's face.

The latter looked up, quickly.

"Perhaps not limit it,—but, rather, assist in its direction."

"Oh, that's all right, we're glad of any assistance. Now, while I'm not a professional detective, I am acting under authority, I am endorsed by the club, and so I trust I'm not exceeding my rights in asking for the freedom of the house for purposes of investigation."

"You mean unquestionable access to all rooms?" Inman stared at him.

"I mean just that," and Cunningham stared back. "I can imagine no possible objection. The examination of Mrs. Heath's room is of utmost importance, and I'm sure Miss Moore would say no word against my entering her room."

"Indeed I would!" and Bunny drew herself up angrily. "Why should you go into my room, Mr. Cunningham?"

"It is an established custom, Miss Moore, to inspect carefully, and with an eye to helpful evidence, all parts of the house and grounds in which a crime has been committed. Iam sorry to say, the police, in this case, have been lax in this respect. But I am told it is due to the absence of Mr. Heath. That, however, is really an additional reason for haste and care in the matter of search, for Mr. Heath's disappearance is a puzzle in itself, and it is highly probable that the two mysteries are interdependent."

"Now, Mr. Cunningham," Mrs. Prentiss broke in, "you're wasting good time, thrashing out foolish questions. Of course, Mr. Inman wants you to have full swing here, and likewise of course, Miss Moore wants you to make a full search. She's new to this business and doesn't understand. So you go right ahead, full steam, and I'll bet a cooky, you unearth some clue that nobody else has noticed. You go into that studio there,—that's where the awful thing happened,—and you see what you can see!"

Cunningham disappeared into the studio, with young Buck following, like a shadow at his heels.

"All rubbed down and polished up!" cried Cunningham disgustedly as he saw the spick and span room. "I did think they'd have the place guarded from that sort of thing."

"What are you out for, anyway?" asked Toddy, who was eagerly waiting to see the detective work.

"Oh, just hints—but who could get any hints here? Body gone. Weapon removed,—even the broken bits of glass swept up! No chance for footprints on this thick carpet. No finger prints on these carefully dusted knick-knacks and doo-dads. Even Heath's painting materials are all put away as neatly as a lady's work basket!"

"But what good would finger prints do you? If they were those of the family party, they would mean nothing. And if strange ones, how would you know whose?"

"Point pretty well taken. And, I'm not really keen for finger prints. I just want something—something indicative or suggestive. Well, here are some letters." He ran over a handful he drew from a pigeonhole.

"Nothing any good! They're bills or club notices, mostly. No billets doux from adoring damsels or anything like that. My, he has a lot of pipe cleaning paraphernalia! Look at all these contraptions."

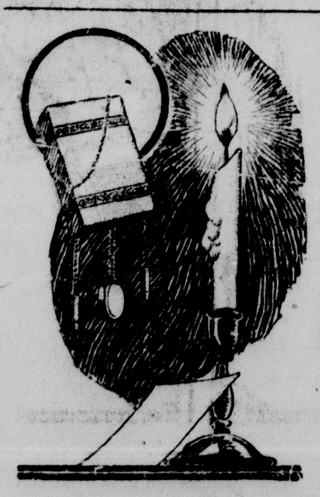
Toddy Buck gazed without interest at the array of patent devices for cleaning pipes or cigarette holders.

"Too many," he said, contemptuously. "An old bit of wire does me. And say, how tidy he keeps his paints. Look at these water-color boxes. All in perfect order. I thought artists were a messy lot."

"Heath isn't. He loves things orderly. His wife did, too. Look at all this glass of hers, ranged in rows in these two cabinets. Not a piece set awry, and all shining and speckless."

"Yes, and there's a row of old bottles like the one she was killed with."

Toddy spoke in an awe-stricken tone. This business seemed a bit gruesome to him, though he was deeply interested.



"Now, maybe, Mr. Cunningham," he went on, "maybe the murderer, whoever he was, touched up the lady's face with these paints, instead of regular cosmetics."

Al Cunningham looked up quickly. "It might be possible. I can't visualize that scene, Buck. If Heath killed his wife, I can understand his painting her face, for he was always at her to do it herself, and, too, he was an artist and forever dabbling with brushes. But I don't think he killed her. For there's no way he could get out. Whereas, if he went away, before she was killed, then clearly some one in the house is the criminal, and tried to turn suspicion to Heath by setting up the card and all that."

"Who, for choice?"

"Well, Inman is a good guess. He had motive, opportunity, and time. And he's clever enough to arrange matters to make it seem the work of Heath, I mean the cosmetics and all, as well as the card. And he's an artist, so if the facial applications were from Heath's water-color box, why, Inman could do that all right, too.'

"And you think Heath really couldn't get away?"

"After committing the crime? See these windows. Small diamond panes, narrow sashes, strong inside locks—"

"But you've only the servants' word that these were all found locked this morning, as well as the rest of the house."

"Yes, and it mostly rests on Herrick's word. Nobody suspects him; he was devoted to Mrs. Heath, and Perry, too. And he could never have put on that make-up so artistically,—so perfectly. No, it was the work of an artist,—or a woman."

"The maids?" queried Buck. "For of course, you can't mean Miss Moore!"

"I mean anybody and nobody. There is no one above suspicion. I'm merely inquiring about everybody. Well, I'm going upstairs. Bedrooms often tell tales that living rooms know nothing of."

Cunningham went upstairs, and at his nod of invitation, Toddy Buck followed.

"I don't get it," Cunningham muesd, as they entered Heath's bedroom. Both Inmann and the little princess seem upset at my investigations. Are they shielding Perry? Or anybody else? For you know if this thing is the work of an outsider, those two must have let the outsider in and let him out again, and also they must have let Heath out."

"Unless he went off naturally, and unquestioned, before the tragedy occurred," Toddy said.

"Yes, that's true talk. Now you see, Buck, we must get in our minds a picture of this room of Perry Heaths'. Look at this place, now. Can't you read Heath all over it? See the chiffonier,—all the brushes and toilet implements laid in a straight orderly row—"

"That's the housemaid's work."

"I know it, but Perry kept them in his dresser drawers. I'll bet his socks and handkerchiefs are in neat piles." He opened one after another, and the clothing was as tidy as he had expected it to be.

"And here's an easy chair, drawn up to the window, with a smoking stand beside it, and a paper rack nearby. He is a bit of a Sybarite, is Perry and yet a tidy sort, too. The two traits don't often go together."

"Well, what you've found out about his neatness and his love of ease doesn't get you along very far in solving the mystery, does it?"

"Dont be impatient son. All in good time. Now, I have this room photographed on my mind in detail; come on, we'll tackle Mrs. Heath's room."

"Oh, I don't like to," and Buck drew back with a natural instinct against invading the sanctity if the dead woman's apartments.

"All right, you stay out, or go back downstairs."

But Toddy was naturally inquisitive, and, too, he was bound to be in on this detective business, so he followed the older man across the threshold.

Frame Houses Wrecked by Florida Hurricane

Like a frail deck of paper cards these frame houses were lifted aloft and carried by the fury of the Florida hurricane to their resting places as shown in the photo, each a crumpled twisted wreck. Photo rushed to Democrat-Forum and Tribune by special plane and over telephoto wires by NEA Service.

RIGHT INFANT FOOD IS A BIG PROBLEM

Regularity of Meals and Guarding Against Under or Over-Feeding Help in Making a Child Win Its Struggle.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Whenever doctors gather together to discuss the ailments of infancy, they talk about the first year of a baby's life. This is the most critical year in any existance.

Scientists have trained their guns upon this field in life's battle more than upon any other. If the baby can be taken through the first 12 months, and especially if he can round out this period in health and vigor, the chances of his survival are very, very bright.

Of course not all the danger ends with the beginning of the second year. The next year and the third year are very important. During these three years the foundation of the future is laid. If this foundation is broad and deep we may hope for a strong, resistant adult life.

It is amazing what care will accomplish in the life of a little baby. The other day I talked with a great big strong woman, weighing nearly 200 pounds, but so big in frame and so hard in muscle that she did not seem to be unduly large. She told me that when she was born she weighed only two pounds. The watchful and tender care of her mother through the first year of life, and indeed through the first two or three years of life, gave her a foundation of health which will practically guarantee 75 or 80 years of useful womanhood.

More important than anything else through the first two or three years of child life is the selection and administration of proper food. The young mother is taught how to prepare the bottle feedings. When the breast fails and it is time to supplement by giving modified cow's milk, the family physician will give minute directions about the preparation of the milk. He will tell the mother how much to feed and how often the bottle is to be given.

It is more difficult to deal with the child after the bottle age is past. It takes a lot of sense to feed the baby up to the time he is three years of age.

The surest index of the welfare of th child is the child itself. If he grows and thrives it is probable the food is just as it should be. If the skin is clear and clean and the teeth appear in proper order, it may be assumed that the mother's feeding methods are correct. A healthy child has the appearance of health and vigor.

At all times from the birth of a child forward, regularity of meals is of great importance. When it has been determined just what shall be fed the child, meals should be given with clock-like regularity.

It is just as important to keep from overfeeding a baby as an adult. You should work out with your doctor the amount of food your baby needs and restrict his food to that amount. Overfeeding results in stomach, kidney and other ailments. Of course the baby cannot develop without ample food, but the mother can learn what the real needs are and supply them so that the child can grow and bloom.

Dr. E. M. Findley was a St. Joseph visitor Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Vern Cox returned home from Evansville, Ind., Tuesday night, where they went to bring back a new two-ton Graham Brothers truck, which Mr. Cox will use for general hauling.

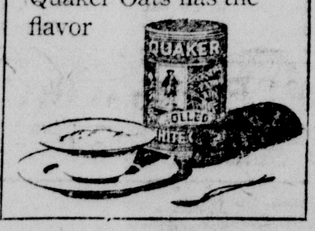
No more, no less . . . but Quaker Oats has the flavor



THE difference in breakfast oats is in their flavor. The price mostly is the same.

Millions demand the Quaker brand because of its toasty, wonderful flavor. For flavor is the important point in food.

Some 50 years were spent perfecting that famous Quaker flavor. Once you taste it, you are spoiled for ordinary oats.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. And that makes laxatives less often needed. Protein, carbohydrates and vitamines and "bulk" are thus combined to make Quaker Oats an excellently balanced ration.

Get Quick Quaker (cooks in 3 to 5 minutes) or Quaker Oats today at your grocer. See how much finer tomorrow's breakfast will be than today's

Higginsville C. of C. For Road Bond Issue

Favors State-Wide Vote on Proposition to Issue 100 Million for Speeding Up Work in Missouri.

The Higginsville Chamber of Commerce heartily endorses the state highway system, commends the highway commission and recently unanimously passed a resolution favoring a 100-million-dollar bond issue in order to bring about an early completion of the state road system. Higginsville has a population of 2,724.

Printed copies of this resolution together with a printed letter are being sent out to all the other commercial organizations in the state urging similar local resolutions.

W. R. Journey, secretary, states that the sentiment of the people of Lafayette County has been well sounded out on the proposition and it is believed a large majority would welcome an opportunity to vote for such a bond issue.

CLOSING GRAIN REVIEW.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Recessions were scored in grain futures trading on the Chicago Board of Trade today. Wheat lost severely. Small grains fluctuated within fractional bounds. Sentiment in wheat was decidedely mixed while cooler weather over the corn belt generally reflected in corn and oats.

Weakened undertone in the bread cereal was based on heavier Canadian movement.

Oats lacked incentives and were inclined to follow the market trend.

Provisions went up reflecting higher hogs. Trading was quiet and without features.

Bedison

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Allen are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen and son, Roy, this week.

This makes the third Sunday that we haven't had Sunday School in Bedison. The weather has been so rainy and the roads are bad so people can't come to Sunday school.

This community was visited Sunday morning by another big rain.

The section boss of Bedison was ordered Wednesday evening to take his men and go to the river bridge north and push drift wood down the river so the bridge would not be washed away.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Logan and children Evelyn and Wilton, were in Maryville shopping Saturday evening.

Heart Broken, Jack Moans

Tunney fought, but a timid, pawing second rater who might have lost to Bartley Madden or a Charlie Weinert. The Dempsey who used to tear out of his corner at the clang of the first bell as though some one had set fire to his trunks, came out with his guard up and to the amazement of the greatest throng that ever saw a prize fight leaped into a clinch with his arms at Tunney's waist.

Tunney, the instinctive counter fighter, shrunk back into the angle of his corner as Dempsey walked at him, not the headlong Dempsey who flung himself at Louis Firpo, but a mincing Dempsey, who crossed the ring with something of William T. Tilden's gait in his stride and didn't even offer a punch when he got there.

Gene Tunney Lands.

Inasmuch as Dempsey hadn't hit him on the way in, Tunney grabbed his arms in a clinch and discovered that he could handle this dark browed fellow with the gauzy little patches of bandage glued to his eyebrows like horns. So Tunney parted Dempsey's arms, and as they stepped away he flipped in a right for the jaw that went straight to the mark with a soggy sound as Dempsey's jaws chopped together. A tremor ran along Dempsey's frame as the right fist drove home, but he pulled up and tossed a right to the jaw himself.

It was not the sort of punch you expected from a Dempsey though. It was the sort of right hand slap that you'd look for in a fight between Joe Stoessel and Sailor Maxted, an incompetent, drifting clout without force enough to trouble a middleweight.

Then Jack Dempsey leaped in with a left hook to the jaw, the left hook that drove clear up to the wrist in the flabby middle of Louis Firpo and dropped him, sucking and moaning for breath in the ring at the Polo grounds that wild night three years ago. The left hook clipped Tunney on the chin and he didn't even spin. Then Gene Tunney realized that although he might not be a killer himself, he certainly had nothing to fear from Jack Dempsey.

Major Raynor Is Teaching Co-eds Horseback Riding

Major Rolf Raynor, formerly with Battery C here and well known in Nodaway County, is now instructing the beautiful young co-eds at Stephens College, Columbia, in the art of horseback riding, according to a dispatch from Columbia.

A miniature bridle path for beginners has been laid out around the college campus, and as the girls become more proficient in the sport, they will be permitted to follow the regular course, around the city, established for advanced riders.

Girls enrolled in the riding school are given college credit for the work and judging from the large enrollment in the classes, there apparently is much interest in the sport.
